

(FK 1.9): Once upon a time, in a faraway land, there was a big, friendly dragon named Drake. Drake had shiny green scales and could breathe fire, but he was very kind. He lived in a cozy cave on a tall hill.

One sunny day, Drake was flying over the forest. He saw a tiny mouse stuck in a thorn bush. The mouse was squeaking for help. Drake landed next to the bush and said, "Don't worry, little mouse. I will help you."

Drake used his big claws to move the thorns. The mouse got free and looked up at Drake with happy eyes. "Thank you!" said the mouse. "My name is Max. What is yours?"

"I'm Drake," said the dragon with a smile. "Are you okay, Max?"

Max nodded. "Yes! Do you want to be friends?"

Drake's eyes sparkled. "I would love that!"

From that day on, Drake and Max were the best of friends. They played games and went on adventures. Drake flew Max high in the sky, and Max found tasty berries for them to eat.

One day, they visited a nearby village. The villagers were scared when they saw Drake, but Max squeaked, "Don't be afraid! Drake is my friend!"

The villagers watched Drake and Max play. They saw how gentle Drake was. Soon, the villagers came out to meet them and brought food to share.

Drake and Max made many new friends that day. They all celebrated with a big feast and lots of laughter.

From then on, Drake and Max visited the village often. They played with the children and helped the villagers. Everyone loved having them around.

Drake and Max showed everyone that friendship can be very special. And they lived happily ever after.

Reading Passage: The Story of Drake and Max

1. Who is the main character in the story?
2. What did Drake see while flying over the forest?
3. Where did Drake live?
4. When did Drake help the tiny mouse?
5. Why were the villagers scared when they first saw Drake?

(FK 2.5): Once upon a time, in a faraway land, there was a big, friendly dragon named Drake. Drake had shiny green scales and could breathe fire, but he was very kind. He lived in a cozy cave on a tall hill.

One sunny day, Drake was flying over the forest. He saw a tiny mouse stuck in a thorn bush. The mouse was squeaking for help. Drake landed next to the bush and said, "Don't worry, little mouse. I will help you."

Using his big claws, Drake moved the thorns away. The mouse got free and looked up at Drake with big, happy eyes. "Thank you!" said the mouse. "My name is Max. What is yours?"

"I'm Drake," the dragon replied with a smile. "Are you okay, Max?"

Max nodded. "Yes, thanks to you! Do you want to be friends?"

Drake's eyes sparkled. "I would love that!"

From that day on, Drake and Max were the best of friends. They played games, shared stories, and went on many adventures together. Drake would fly Max high in the sky, and Max would find the best berries for them to eat.

One day, they decided to visit a nearby village. The villagers were scared when they saw Drake, but Max squeaked, "Don't be afraid! Drake is my friend, and he is very kind!"

The villagers watched as Drake and Max played together. They saw how gentle Drake was and how happy Max looked. Soon, the villagers came out to meet them. They brought food and treats to share.

Drake and Max made many new friends that day. The villagers learned that a big dragon and a tiny mouse can be friends. They all celebrated with a big feast and lots of laughter.

From then on, Drake and Max visited the village often. They played with the children and helped the villagers with their chores. Everyone loved having them around.

Even though they were different, Drake and Max showed everyone that friendship can come in many shapes and sizes. And they lived happily ever after.

Reading Passage: The Story of Drake and Max

1. Who did Drake meet in the thorn bush?
2. What did Max want to do after Drake helped him?
3. Where did Drake and Max go to visit the villagers?
4. When did the villagers start to come out and meet Drake and Max?
5. Why did the villagers bring food and treats to share?

(FK 3.4): Once upon a time, in a faraway land, there lived a big, friendly dragon named Drake. Drake had shiny green scales and could breathe fire, but he was very kind. He made his home in a cozy cave at the top of a tall hill.

One sunny day, as Drake flew over the forest, he spotted a tiny mouse trapped in a thorn bush. The mouse was squeaking loudly for help. Drake landed gently beside the bush and said, "Don't worry, little mouse. I'll help you."

Using his big claws, Drake carefully moved the thorns aside. The mouse was freed and looked up at Drake with bright, grateful eyes. "Thank you so much!" the mouse exclaimed. "My name is Max. What's yours?"

"I'm Drake," the dragon replied with a friendly smile. "Are you okay, Max?"

Max nodded happily. "Yes, thanks to you! Would you like to be friends?"

Drake's eyes lit up. "I would love that!"

From that day on, Drake and Max became the best of friends. They played games, told stories, and went on many exciting adventures together. Drake would soar high in the sky with Max riding on his back, and Max would gather the tastiest berries for their snacks.

One day, they decided to visit a nearby village. When the villagers saw Drake, they were scared at first. But Max squeaked loudly, "Don't be afraid! Drake is my friend, and he is very kind!"

The villagers watched as Drake and Max played together. They noticed how gentle Drake was and how happy Max looked. Slowly, the villagers came out to meet them, bringing food and treats to share.

That day, Drake and Max made many new friends. The villagers learned that even a big dragon and a tiny mouse could be friends. They celebrated with a big feast filled with laughter and joy.

From then on, Drake and Max visited the village often. They played with the children and helped the villagers with their chores. Everyone loved having them around.

Even though they were different in size, Drake and Max showed everyone that friendship can come in all shapes and sizes. And they lived happily ever after.

Reading Passage: The Story of Drake and Max

1. Who did Max introduce himself to when he was freed?
2. What activities did Drake and Max enjoy together?
3. Where did Drake take Max for their adventures?
4. When did the villagers learn that Drake was kind?
5. Why is the friendship between Drake and Max special?